Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from A Guide to the Domesticated Animals (Other Than Horses): Exhibited in the Central and North Halls of the British Museum (Natural History) Cromwell Road, London, W Although there are a few specimens which have been in the Museum for many years, the collection of Domesticated Animals is mainly of quite recent origin. The importance of the study of Domesticated Animals to the scientific naturalist is indicated in the following extract from the works of Professor Ernst Haeckel: - Wild animals and plants, one year after another, appear approximately in the same form, and thus give rise to the mistaken doctrine of the constancy of species; domesticated animals and plants, on the other hand, display great changes within a few years. The perfection attained by breeders and gardeners in the art of selection enables them to produce entirely new forms in a short time. For this purpose it is only necessary to keep and propagate the animal or plant under special conditions, when, after a few generations, new species may be obtained, differing from the original form in a much higher degree than do many wild species, or even genera, from one another. The importance of this fact cannot be over-estimated in connection with the origin of species. The interest of the collection to breeders, fanciers, and the public generally is self-apparent. The present Guide-book, which has been written by Mr. Lydekker, includes the whole of the collection of Domesticated Animals, other than Horses and Asses; these latter forming the subject of a separate work.
