And, at the same time, I want particularly to mention the necessity for correcting the lack of cooperation on our part with the craftsmen, mechanics and others employed upon buildings. In this connection the American Federation of Labor maintains a Building Trades Department, composed of 19 organizations known as Internationals, with local branches, in different parts of the country covering the various industries that pertain to building construction. These concern themselves, among other things which we ought to know more about, with methods of safety in construction and the use of building materials. Other organizations exist whose chief function is to make for safety in all the industries and in all walks of life. Among these...
